Graham orders cops to hire equal employment official

By GILBERT PRICE
Call and Post Staff Writer

Santa, in the form of U.S. District Court Judge James Graham, has visited the Columbus Division of Police, found them to have been naughty rather than nice, and is now preparing to leave a lump of coal in their stocking—a remedy to the Black police officers' discrimination case which would require hiring of a new equal employment opportunity officer for the division.

The ruling has been hailed by an attorney for the Black police officers. However, representatives of both the police department and the Black officers say the key to the successful implementation of the order is the character and status of the person who is hired into the new role.

Under the ruling, Graham has said that the new EEO officer, who could be paid up to $49,000 per year, would report directly to the director of public safety, Alfonso Montgomery. The EEO officer would have broad powers to investigate and root out discrimination in the division of police, including the responsibility to investigate and make recommendations on officers coming up for promotion concerning their history of racial awareness and sensitivity.

First Black common pleas judge

By GILBERT PRICE
Call and Post Staff Writer

Christmas came a little early for Richard Letts this year. On Dec. 16, to be exact.

On that day, Letts, chief of the criminal division of the Columbus branch of the U.S. Attorney's office, was named president of the Columbus chapter of the Federal Bar Association. But an even bigger present was also in store: Gov. Richard Celeste also named Letts, 43, as a Common Pleas Court judge in Franklin County—the first Black ever named in the county.

"I'm on cloud nine right now."

RICHARD LETTS
...son of a former judge

I'm really ecstatic," Letts said after learning of his appointment. "I have promised the governor I will perform as well, if not better, as a judge than I've done as a U.S. assistant attorney."

Letts, a Michigan native, received his undergraduate degree in political science from Ohio State University, and his law degree from Ohio Northern. He came to the U.S. attorney's office in 1979, after a stint with the Ohio Attorney General. He has been chief of the criminal section since 1983.

Letts will be a second-generation judge: his father, (Continued On Page 9B)

UNCF telethon airs on WCMH-TV4 Saturday

Throughout his career, singer Lou Rawls has scored a number of successes in the entertainment world. Among them are one platinum and six gold albums, a gold single, four Grammys, and numerous guest appearances on prime-time television.

As the driving force behind the "Lou Rawls Parade of Stars" telethon for the United Negro College Fund, the Chicago native has also succeeded in assuring that deserving youngsters have the opportunity to get a college education.

Through Rawls' eight-year involvement with the telethon, which galvanizes support for the UNCF's 42 colleges and universities, over $41 million has been pledged to UNCF, enabling qualified and needy youngsters to study at the nation's historically Black private colleges and universities.

Private historically Black colleges have produced thousands of graduates who are making significant contributions to American society. Many alumni who hold professional and managerial positions in U.S. businesses are the first Blacks hired for such jobs. Many graduates also occupy key elected posts in local, state and federal government.

Their personal success is a testimony to the quality education and leadership experiences gained during the time they spent at one of the 42 colleges and universities supported by the United Negro College Fund (UNCF). As students, they benefited from the individualized attention of dedicated professors, a practice that is a longstanding tradition at UNCF-member schools.

Noted alumni of these institutions who are trailblazers in their professions include novelists Alice Walker and Frank Yerby, film producer/director Spike Lee, Mayors Andrew Young of Atlanta and Marion Barry of Washington, D.C., Olympic gold medalist Edwin Moses, singer/composer Lionel Richie, diva Leontyne Price, and Argonne National Laboratory Vice President Walter Massey. Their contributions to American life are well-known, and exemplify the success of numerous UNCF graduates.

Although the combined enrollment of the 42 UNCF schools is approximately 45,000 students, the impact of these institutions is reflected by the following statistics:

- Over 85 percent of the Black veterinarians in the U.S. were trained at Tuskegee University's School of Veterinary Medicine.

- Since its founding in 1946, the Atlanta University Graduate School of Business Administration had produced more minority MBAs than any other graduate business program.

- More than 300 Morehouse College alumni are lawyers, and they constitute 3 percent of the country's Black lawyers.

- Forty percent of the Black health care professionals in Mississippi are Tougaloo College graduates.

- The first Black female director of the U.S. Peace Corps graduated from Bennett College.

- Eighteen college presidents are graduates of Virginia Union University.

- Twenty percent of the public school teachers and administrators in New Orleans are Dillard University graduates.

- Xavier University's College of Pharmacy trains 14 percent of all Black pharmacists, more than any other pharmacy college in the nation.

Rawls' commitment to the UNCF is based on his belief that education offers the best solution to today's problems. He takes the motto of the UNCF seriously: "A Mind Is A Terrible Thing To Waste."

"The value of a college education cannot be understated," Rawls said. "Education provides people with the skills necessary to cure illnesses, resolve conflicts and to understand the different cultures of the world."

In addition to his role as host of the national telecast, Rawls actively participates in promoting the special by making personal appearances in cities across the country. Each year he attends telethon kickoff parties in cities like New York, Chicago, New

Kappas 'adopt' Johnson Park '20'

By JENNIFER E. SMITH

The Columbus Alumni Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi recently adopted 20 eighth graders from the (Nurturing Educational Winners) NEW Johnson Park Middle School, to give them a chance to better themselves and learn leadership skills.

The program, which is also designed to help the students prepare for college, is expected to begin Jan. 7 with a "get acquainted" meeting in the school's library.

Members of the fraternity will eat lunch with the boys at the school once a month. They will also be attending concerts, sporting events, seminars and participating in athletics with the boys.

According to Kenneth Howard, president of the Columbus Chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi, Johnson Park was chosen because its student body is drawn from lower to middle class families. "We are interested in working with Black young men because the highest attrition rate in the Columbus Public School system is among Black males. We want to work with these young men and be role models for them," Howard said.

The program has been in the planning stage for over a year, and was organized by Bob Suber, Capital University acting dean of Student Services and Will Anderson, Columbus Public School special assistant to the superintendent.

Tim Iig, Columbus Public School Southeast Quadrant Director, said the program is still open-ended because the fraternity wants the students to have some input on what kind of activities they will participate in.

Governor's new counsel

In another move to bring in a Black as a senior-level official, Gov. Richard F. Celeste has named Columbus Attorney Napoleon Bell as his legal counsel.

Bell will replace Alex Shumate, who has been serving double duty as legal counsel and deputy chief of staff. While Shumate will retain his post of deputy chief of staff, he is expected to leave the administration within the next few months to enter the private practice of law. Shumate will become a partner in the Columbus office of Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, a Cleveland-based law firm.

Bell, 60, has been in private practice in Columbus since 1958. He has also had a distinguished public career, including the chairmanship of the state Board of Tax Appeals from 1971 to 1974. He is also a member of the board of the Columbus State Community College.

The Celeste administration has been interested in bringing Bell into state service for some time. He was offered a Common Pleas Court judgeship several years ago, which he declined.

Bell's salary was undetermined at Call and Post edition time. Shumate, however, had been paid $60,000 per year.

Celeste also named a new communications director. Gary South, a Washington consultant, will oversee the governor's press office, speechwriting, scheduling and other public relations activities.

The appointment of Bell caps a flurry of appointments of Black senior-level officials within the Celeste administration. Col. Richard Alexander was named the Adjutant General, picked by the governor over a couple of highly-placed Brigadier Generals. Former deputy administrator of the Bureau of Workers' Compensation, Paula Trout was recently named to the Industrial Commission, and Huntington Bank general counsel Ralph Frasier was Looking on are Yvonne Jones, vice president, Brenda Toler, secretary and Ray Nixon, president of the association.

Black administrators help Ridgway center

The Columbus Black Administrators Association recently spread a little Christmas cheer by giving $100 to the Isabelle Ridgway Nursing Center, 1520 Hawthorne Ave.

Raymond Nixon, vice president at Ridgeview Middle School and president of the group said the donation is part of the organization's effort to get more involved in community issues.

"Our motto this year is 'Unity Through Involvement.' We hope that by donating to worthy causes and organizations we can encourage our members and other Black professionals to take a more active role in the community," Nixon said.

Michael Dave, treasurer of the group, came up with the suggestion of giving a donation to the nursing home.

"I've been familiar with Isabelle Ridgway Center for many years. I thought we should do something to let them know that we support the fine job they are doing," said Dave, a supervisor at Northeast Career Center.

Mel Clausey, manager of the Isabelle Ridgway Center, applauded the school administrators for their concern.

"I'm impressed that a professional organization such as the Black Administrators Association would be so concerned about our senior citizens. The residents here are a valuable community resource. Many of them were instrumental in the civil rights struggle and opened doors for many Black professionals. It's nice to see Black professionals returning the favor," she said.

Clausey said the money will be used to buy materials that will help educate the public about the aging process.

Celebrating the last Christmas with love

For most people, Christmas is a time when bright lights, colorful packages, and the sharing of gifts generate warm feelings and starry eyed amazement.

But for others, this special holiday may be a time of sorrow when a close friend or family member learns they will be living their last Christmas due to a life limiting illness. Such ailments include cancer, heart disease, and Alzheimer's disease. The Mount Carmel Hospice Program helps families cope with the impending loss of a loved one.

"It is important for friends and families to work through their feelings, pull together, and be prepared to face what's ahead, according to Myra Clark," hospice counselor.

"By its very nature, the Christmas can be a very stressful time because of increased spending and more demands being placed on our time. If someone is facing a life limiting illness during the holidays, special routines and traditions should be handled with care," Clark advises.

Families should decide what they can manage comfortably and let these needs be known among family members, friends and co-workers.

For instance, the family dinner, the method of exchanging gifts, or a time honored approach to decorating the home or the Christmas tree may be too sentimental and too difficult to carry out under the circumstances.

If traditional celebrations create too much emotional anguish, then loved ones may want to consider a change that "reduces the sorrow and increases the meaning. For example, if gifts are exchanged on Christmas Eve, consider waiting until Christmas Day to open presents.

Don't be afraid to make changes or adjustments as long as you are good and gentle with one another," the counselor said.

Before making any changes,

Police specialist

Army Private Christopher N. Jones, son of Eugene Jones of 3598 Bainbridge, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, and Daphne D. Johnson of 2720 Humphrey Ave., Ashtabula, Ohio, has completed training as an Army military police specialist under the one station unit training (OSUT) program at Fort McClellan, Ala.

His wife, Reina, is the daughter of the Rev. Hipolito and Sadie Ruiz of 4523 Pine Drive, Forest Park, Ga. He is a 1985 graduate of Harbor High School, Ashtabula.

Second lieutenant

Kristina E. Van Nederveen, daughter of Gilles K. and Marianne J. Van Nederveen of 28719 Knickerbocker Road, Bay Village, Ohio, has been commissioned a second lieutenant through the Army ROTC program, and earned a bachelor's degree at Ohio State University, Columbus.

Karen Boyd's holiday wish

Christmas is the time of year when we help each other. Gifts, well-wishing and general concern for humankind, is being addressed by most social and civic organizations.

While you're thinking about gift-giving and what you might do for mankind, think about giving the gift of "time." Time is one of those gifts that come in various sizes and price ranges to fit the individual, the life style and taste, not to mention the budget. Time can be given in one lump sum or in small installments with a qualifying deposit, of course. Depending on its quality, it can yield great dividends, especially if the "time" you give is given to those who need it most.

Those most in need of the gift include the elderly, the lonely and the group I strongly advocate—the young black male.

Just think—with a minimal contribution of time you can yield more black males' finishing school, staying out of prison; can decrease gang membership, strengthen the black family, increase the success of male/female relationships, increase the youth's ability to come off the endangered species list and, in general, help him stay alive.

It's true; just a small investment of "time" can yield great dividends. Ask the Reverend C. Dexter Wise III, who invested his "time" getting youngsters to stay crime and chemical-free to the tune of 10,000 (youth, that is) or Mr. Will Anderson, of Columbus Board of Education, who is investing his "time" in coordinating a statewide conference to preserve "The Endangered Species of the Black Male," or Reginald Cooke, president of A.C.B. (a black male organization that invests "time" with young black males). Or ask one of Franklin County Children Services' "Everyday Heroes" Charles Noland, Darrel Deberry, Harold Yarbrough or Raymond Greenwood for a true testimonial about the yield on their small "investment of time." All of them say it is fun, too.

Eugene Stewart is one of the many Black males in need of Black volunteers who can offer some quality time.

Beauticians plan for King breakfast

COLUMBUS—Adell Huff is already making plans for members of her trade association to attend the Third Annual Martin Luther King Breakfast.

Huff, a Columbus resident and president of the Ohio Association of Beauticians (OAB), has extended an invitation to OAB members from across the state to attend the King Breakfast on Monday, Jan. 18 at 9 a.m. in the Ohio Center-Battelle Hall.

She has mailed letters to the 18 OAB chapter presidents asking them to celebrate the King holiday in Columbus. Huff recommended they charter buses to come to the event.

Breakfast tickets are $15 each and can be obtained by mail or by calling the Shiloh Baptist Church at 253-7946 or the CALL & POST at 224-8123. To order tickets by mail, make a check or money order payable to: M.L. King Breakfast Committee and mail it to P.O. Box 2606, Columbus, OH. 43216. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Since the first two King breakfasts were sell-outs, persons planning to attend should get their tickets early.

The keynote speaker will be Thomas N. Todd, a Chicago attorney. Todd was an early member of the King team, working on the 1956 Montgomery bus boycott where King first gained his reputation as a civil rights leader. Todd has also served as executive director of Operation PUSH.

Assigned to Ft. Hood

Cpl. Tracy J. Prince, son of Ann and Gerald W. Prince of 2357 E. 90th St., Cleveland, has participated in the NATO-sponsored exercise, Return of Forces to Germany '87 (REFORGER). The soldier is assigned to the 2nd Armored Division, Fort Hood, Texas.

Espy wins King Award

City Councilman Ben Espy will receive the Columbus Education Association's Martin Luther King Award at its Ninth Annual Award Dinner on Jan. 14 at the Hyatt on Capitol Square.

A spokesperson for the association said Espy was selected for this award because he "demonstrates efforts to keep the ideals and spirit of the late Dr. King alive."

The banquet's keynote speaker will be Rev. James Perkins, pastor of the Greater Christ Baptist Church of Detroit, Mich.

A native of Williamson, W. Va., Perkins graduated from Wiley College in Marshall, Texas with a bachelor of science degree. He completed his theological work at the Andover-Newton Seminary School in Newton, Mass.

Greater Christ is one of the leading Black churches in Detroit. The members are dedicated to the progress of the youth in the city. They have many service organizations as a part of the church including the ownership of a Burger King restaurant franchise.

Tickets are $17 per person. For more information, call the Columbus Education Association's office at 253-4731.

SAT prep course

The Columbus Chapter of the National Technical Association (NTA) will sponsor a Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) preparation course for college bound high school students, beginning Jan. 10. ECCO awarded grant for homeless people

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has awarded ECCO Family Health Center 1166 East Main Street $626,512 to provide health care for homeless people. Representative Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio (Columbus) announced recently.

There are 20,000 people living in Columbus without a permanent address with 500 of them on the street at any given time. Over the past 3 years ECCO Family Health Center has taken the leadership in providing health care to these homeless people.

Thirteen shelters for the homeless will benefit from the services of the center which include comprehensive medical, including Internal Medicine, Pediatrics, Obstetrics and Gynecology, and Podiatry; Lab and X-Ray services; comprehensive Dentistry and Optometry; Special Health Services (AIDS, HIV, TB, etc.); Social Services and Transportation.

The center will in addition network with Project Liaison of the 648 Board for Mental Health Services and Substance Abuse training for staff from CompDrug. Further the grant will provide an additional Alcoholism Central Officer to the City of Columbus Health Department to enhance service from them to the homeless.

Outreach and health assessment will be provided by a mobile van. There will be 24 hour access to the service system utilizing the center's urgent care and back-up systems.

ECCO Family Health Center has been providing affordable health care to the Columbus community since 1970. The health care for the homeless program is another example of the center's commitment to providing quality health service to all of Columbus' citizens.

Wooster College awarded fellow

WOOSTER—Wooster is one of only 10 liberal arts colleges nationwide that has been awarded a $45,000 teaching fellow in chemistry from The Camille and Henry Dreyfus Foundation of New York City.

Wooster's chemistry department, under the direction of Professor Ted R. Williams, secured the grant in competition with colleges and universities across America. The funds will support teaching and research by a fellow in the 1988-89 academic year.

Other grant recipients include Swarthmore, Bucknell, Franklin and Marshall and Harvey Mudd.

Liberal arts schools were targeted for funding because of their successful record of educating chemists, according to the foundation.

"We got the award in stiff competition, and we're very pleased about it," said Dr. David L. Powell, a member of the chemistry faculty who will serve as mentor to Wooster's fellow.

The foundation initiated a grant program in an effort to increase the number of talented students majoring in chemistry, and to improve the quality of science teachers and researchers. Grant awards were based on evaluations of the chemistry teaching and research records at each school. Wooster's record shows:

-Three faculty members who have won the Catalyst Award of the Chemical Manufacturers Association, a distinction that no other liberal arts school in the United States can claim.

-A national leader (third among private colleges) in the number of graduates who obtain doctoral degrees in chemistry.

-A sizeable number of graduates who have taught chemistry at major colleges and universities, including Stanford, Pennsylvania, Vanderbilt, Colorado and Ohio State.

-Publication of 68 faculty papers in the past six years — 30 of them co-authored by a total of 56 students.

-A required Independent Study program that permits students to focus on new research — often at the cutting edge — and summer research which has engaged 75 students in the past decade.

Powell said he expects the fellowship to attract "a good crop of applicants from the top echelon of those finishing graduate school or post-doctoral appointments."

Under Powell's guidance, the fellow will devote equal time to teaching and research while participating in at least one junior I.S. project and directing a senior I.S. student.

The fellow will be at Wooster for one academic year and two summers. One summer's work will be funded under a separate grant previously received from the Research Experience for Undergraduates Program of the National Science Foundation.

The Dreyfus grant includes $5,000 in supplemental funds that the department requested to bring a high school teacher and student to campus for a summer research program. Both could then provide students at their home high school with a clear sense of the nature of research at the college level, according to the department's funding proposal.

Wooster's chemistry faculty members have been active in presenting programs to primary and secondary school students interested in science and providing research opportunities for local science teachers.

IN OUR OPINION

Merry Christmas!

As Blacks, we have always been able to identify with the story of Christmas.

There is something within us which reaches out to the Christ Child, a child born in poverty with no friends. A child born in a stable because he had been excluded from the inn. A child of eternal wealth who was prepared to suffer indignity and shame because of his love for humanity.

"Sweet little Jesus boy, they made you be in a manger. Sweet little holy child, they didn't know who you was," the old Negro spiritual says.

At this time of the year, we can look at so many who, like that child in the manger, are victimized by poverty and oppression. We can look at the thousands of homeless in our communities, who are clearly finding out, as Joseph and Mary did, that there is no room at the inn.

We can look at the victims of oppression worldwide, like those in South Africa, who find no place of rest because of the lowliness of their birth or the color of their skins.

Yet, the humility of the birth does nothing to mask the special, bright hope which that birth has brought to millions around the globe. The hope of freedom from slavery, whether economic, political or social. The hope of God's love shed abroad in the hearts of men.

The message of, "Peace on earth, Good will to men" which, the Bible says, the angels sang on that Christmas morning.

So, Christmas is a time of contemplation, and hope. We must consider all those who have so little, even as we often take the time to celebrate our abundance. Yet we see the great hope which has fired men's lives for almost 2000 years; hope which has burned in the lives of Blacks even from their time in this nation's slavery. We reflect on that hope, and we rededicate our own lives to making that hope real in the lives of others.

If we can do that, this — and every Christmas — will be a "Merry Christmas," after all. MERRY CHRISTMAS!

The CSU report

People who did not expect the CSU Civic Committee report to be a stinging, fingerpointing indictment of racism at Cleveland State University, won't be disappointed by the substance of the long awaited report.

The CSU Civic Committee report is a polite, apologetic ratification of countless charges that have been lodged against the university.

It is clearly evident that committee members failed to reach a consensus conception of racism. In spite of that seeming lack, the committee performed a community service by offering 40 recommendations, including centralizing and empowering a cabinet level minority affairs office. The recommendations provide a constant to measure the university's commitment to escape from its racist conduct.

Had the report been more specific, those persons currently employed, who permitted racist implementation of what the committee reported were "appropriate affirmative action policy" could be publically monitored. Like the individuals who share the blame for not including one or more Blacks among the 31 new coaches, administrators and others hired by the athletic department from 1982-1986 they are still making decisions. Who is going to monitor these persons? The same people that exercised oversight before. Those who permitted racism to fester, are still in charge, both in the administration and on the Board of Trustees.

The report glaringly omits the blame attributable to the board, who as a continuing body has demonstrated it is incapable of combating racism.

The trustees' handling of the "retirement" of President Walter Waetjen, the withholding of the Labor Department report on racism at CSU from the public and Congressman Louis Stokes are just the beginning of a long, sorry record of looking out for the public's interest.

The board may have an ethnic agenda but it certainly is not Black. And any report that fails to define the trustees as the guiltiest of the guilty is incomplete.

Discrimination's price

As we end the period which is the heaviest shopping time of the year, the Columbus branch of the NAACP and in Cleveland, the Coalition for a Black Agenda are telling Black consumers that they should not support merchants who refuse to hire and promote Black workers.

They are calling for a boycott of all Columbus and Cleveland businesses which refuse to hire Blacks, according to branch President Melanie Mitchell. Their operative phrase backing the boycott, is "if you don't hear about it through Black media, don't buy it. If you walk into a store and see few or no minorities, walk out."

This type of boycott has an illustrious history in the civil rights movement. In the 1960s in both Columbus and Cleveland, such boycotts were directed against a number of area employers with the slogan, "don't shop where you can't work." These boycotts were effective both in heightening community awareness and sensitizing business officials, and resulted in the hiring of many qualified Blacks.

In however, the more than 20 years since those efforts were employed, there remains a problem with many employers refusing to hire Blacks. The Call and Post has often pointed out, for example, that the hospitality industry, which used to be a heavy employer of Blacks in menial positions, is now seeing fewer Blacks in those menial positions and only a small handful in positions of real power. Last year, at the annual Martin Luther King Breakfast, Call and Post general manager Amos H. Lynch Sr., chided the Hyatt Regency and the Ohio Center for its failure to hire more than a handful of Blacks.

There remains a number of other appropriate targets for such activity in both Cleveland and Columbus. As The Call and Post pointed out two years ago in a series, the pace of change in the executive suites of Columbus is glacially slow, and the highest-ranking positions remain almost entirely white.

Statistics will continually show that Blacks — even Black college graduates — have rates of unemployment higher than their white counterparts, and the overall Black rate of unemployment is double that of whites. And, in an era in which the Reagan administration is attempting to turn back the clock on affirmative action, many corporate employers don't feel the pressure to continue to make efforts to hire and upgrade Black employees.

It is for this reason that the Black community must address this critical problem with the only weapon it has: Its own dollars. A concerted, targeted buying program will send a message to Blacks and whites. It will let Blacks know that their dollars have weight, and can help set Black people free. Also, it will let white business leaders know that discrimination always has a price.

IN YOUR OPINION

Bruce-Bay debacle should inspire examination

I respond in full concurrence with the Call and Post November 26 editorial ("College football hypocrisy").

In the aftermath of the dispute surrounding the firing of OSU football coach Earle Bruce and the subsequent resignation of Rick Bay as athletics director, it is unfortunately significant to note that certain Columbus area media enterprises did not share your outrage.

I should like to unveil a few striking instances, restricted to Big Ten football, that illuminate more glaringly the capriciousness of OSU President Ed Jennings' "personnel matter."

ITEM: In 1981, the Big Ten Conference imposed a three-year probation (soon thereafter reduced to one year) on the University of Illinois men's athletics program. Sanction centered around the university's non-compliance with conference rules in regard to the football program under coach Mike White. The university denied wrongdoing and denounced the Big Ten.

In an unprecedented action, Illinois' governor and state legislature authorized special lottery funds for the benefit of the U of I Athletic Association. The athletics director and football coaches were retained.

ITEM: In 1984, the NCAA penalized the University of Illinois defending Big Ten football champion with two years' probation because of substantial rules violations. Upon expiration, the university's probationary period was extended six months due to irregularities in 1986 summer jobs programs for football players. Illinois Coach Mike White and Athletics Director Neale Stoner remain and recently received contract extensions.

ITEM: Last December, Purdue University hired Fred Akers as its head football coach. Several months after accepting the Purdue position, the University of Texas football program was placed on two years' NCAA probation for a repeated pattern of violations and abuses incurred during Akers' decade-long tenure as the Longhorns' head coach. Mr. Akers denied responsibility and conveniently escaped punishment.

This backdrop of improprieties, illegalities and screw-ups begs the question—where is the justice? The obvious answer is that we have precisely the principles, standards of integrity and institutional control we demand of our university leaders—that is, very little. And what we have here, as much as anything, is rampant hypocrisy.

It is an outrage and an insult to higher education. To my mind, cowardice and duplicity were at the bottom of the entire episode that besieged Ohio State. The fact that the citizens of Ohio have not been presented a true explanation on this issue is intensely discomforting and lends credence to the grotesque caricature of an unraveling university leadership apparatus.

At best, the Bruce-Bay debacle should inspire a magnified examination into the seemingly ever-increasing manipulative influence of power brokers in university decision-making processes. When it comes to accepting responsibility, the university president must demonstrate real courage and the strength to overcome encroachment by powerful forces.

I propose that Jennings, the Athletic Council and new Athletic Director Jim Jones launch a clearly and publicly articulated statement of mission for the athletics department, so that the goals are fully understood faculty, staff, students, alumni and "friends" of the university. Of immediate concern, however, is that Mr. Jennings address the place and purpose of intercollegiate athletics—namely, football—in the conduct of university governance.

In reality, despite expedient out-of-court settlement between OSU and Mr. Bruce, both suffered damnably—and neither wins in the long term. Well-crafted claims aside, numerous questions remain unanswered. As for Earle Bruce and Rick Bay: They leave the Ohio State University a distinguished legacy of athletics accomplishment, academic integrity and ethical conduct worthy of closer attention and fuller emulation.

Respectfully,
Philip A. Nathan

Label earned

A few months ago Senator Howard Metzenbaum became upset over a Republican party report which charged, among other things, that the Ohio Senator is a communist sympathizer. Almost weekly, however, Mr. Metzenbaum shows why he has earned such a label.

If one studies Metzenbaum's voting record, he'll find the Senator consistently approving either aid to and trade with communist nations or government officials who push for the same. A recent example came October 13 when he voted to confirm C. William Verity as Secretary of Commerce. (Senator John Glenn did the same).

Mr. Verity has long championed more economic aid for communists. For one example, he was national co-Chairman from 1979-84 of the US-USSR Trade and Economic Council, an organization which encourages every country to expand trade with the Soviet bloc.

Howard Metzenbaum may resent the communist sympathizer label, but, his voting record reveals, he has earned it. His approval of C. William Verity as Secretary of Commerce is but the latest example that Senator Metzenbaum will allow into our government those who will enhance aid to and trade with communist nations, support which keeps those dictatorships in power.

Sincerely,
Joseph Ogrinc

Going alone

The recent court case of Mr. Frederick E. Crawford versus the Regional Transit Authority is puzzling to me.

I see Black employees working on all the rolling equipment, and some appear on television or in the print media addressing the concerns of the transit system. I therefore assumed that our folks were well entrenched in all the workings of the system.

It seems that a Black caucus should have been in force at the RTA and it should have tackled the problems of promotions, etc. Mr. Crawford should not have had to go it alone, especially when there have been other incidents of unfair practice.

A luta continua (the struggle continues).

Sincerely yours,
James R. Cliff

One step closer

With the help and support of many individuals, organizations, schools, and county wide linkages we were able to successfully provide training and employment opportunities to over 2400 youth this past summer.

With each individual involved, our success has become your success and, more importantly, the youth of our community have benefitted. Through knowledge gained, school credits earned or exposure to the working world, these youth have come one step closer to becoming the productive citizens of tomorrow.

I take this opportunity to personally say thank you Call and Post for its involvement and support in this accomplishment. Your continual support is greatly appreciated and I look forward to our future opportunities to work together.

OTHER OPINIONS

nationally, and in Ohio, there is a rapidly emerging consensus that the welfare system must be reformed. Now, a Columbus legislator is holding hearings about possible ways this can be accomplished.

State Rep. Ray Miller, chairman of the House Finance Subcommittee on Human Resources, is holding hearings on the issue of welfare reform on Dec. 9. He is coming from a simple premise which has widespread support: There is no system in America that is as destructive and dehumanizing as the welfare system," Miller said. "The welfare system creates dependency and suppresses self-initiative, self-esteem and self-worth."

Miller's concern is twofold. In personal terms, Miller is concerned about the waste of human capital which so often accompanies long-term welfare dependency. As a state legislator, however, he is also concerned about the cost. Welfare expenditures have more than doubled since 1977, from $500 million per year to more than $1 billion. To Miller, that $1 billion has not bought significant improvements in the lives of the recipients. "Nothing has changed," Miller said, "and the welfare rolls have grown."

Now, Miller believes, the solution to the welfare problem is the development of a system which encourages education and skills training for welfare recipients.

Miller has said that he is looking at both "short-term" and "long-term" proposals to restructure the welfare system. In the short-term, he is pressing the Department of Human Services to identify ways to reduce the incidence of teen-aged pregnancy, which he calls welfare checks. In addition, he is going to be working with welfare

"astronomical."

He will be proposing for Ohio a plan, originally developed in Wisconsin, which would require all teenaged mothers to be enrolled in some sort of educational or training program in order to continue to receive their officials and the federal government to gain a waiver for the state's medicaid program, so that young women who are dropped from the welfare rolls when they find work are not immediately forced out of the medicaid program.

That program, which provides free health care for recipients and their immediate families, is one of the major benefits which holds many young women on welfare. Often, a low-paying job costs the recipient more than it is worth, if one compares the loss of medical benefits.

In the long term, Miller said he intends, in the next budget cycle, to "redirect a sizable portion—a shocking percentage—of the welfare budget into programs of education and training." The present program, he believes, is just a "maintenance program" which helps people stay on welfare rather than pulling them out of it.

In his first hearing, Miller saw the consensus referred to earlier in the article. When he asked participants from across the political spectrum—including welfare rights advocates—"what is the single most important thing we can do to reduce welfare dependency," the answer was unanimous: Expanded education and training programs.

The reason is obvious: When one looks at the persons who experience long-term dependency on welfare, Miller said, "the vast majority have less than a high-school education and no skills training."

Miller adds that he does not want to see people hurt in this process of changing the system. But he is emphatic: The system must change.

"Most people want to stand on their own two feet," Miller said, "but changes must be made in the welfare system to allow current recipients to do so."

Taxes soak the poor

By JOHN E. JACOB
Call and Post contributing writer

Historically, the tax structure has been used to help equalize incomes, as well as to raise revenues. But now it looks like the nation's tax structure—state and federal alike—is a regressive instrument that widens income inequality.

A recent analysis of federal taxes made by the Congressional Budget Office says that the poorest tenth of American families will end up paying twenty percent more of their earnings in federal taxes than they did a decade ago. Meanwhile, the richest one percent will pay almost twenty percent less.

And this comes at a time when the vast majority of Americans—80 percent according to the CBO—have lower real incomes than they did back in 1977. That's because wages didn't keep up with inflation.

The lowest federal tax rate moves up from eleven percent to fifteen percent next year. Higher social security taxes and excise taxes also add to the burdens of the typical family to a far greater extent than for affluent families.

So the net result of the Reagan tax revolution was to cut taxes for the wealthy while taking more from low and moderate income families. The rationale was that by cutting taxes for the wealthy, they'll invest more. But national savings and investment rates are down, not up.

And while the Administration correctly claims that even with lower rates, the percentage share of the tax burden paid by the affluent is higher, that's because their share of the national income has risen so much.

The problem of regressive taxes is compounded by the fact that most states have tax structures that soak the poor.

While the federal tax reform exempted most of the working poor from federal income taxes, state and local tax collectors continue to squeeze revenues from those least able to pay.

Even before federal tax reform, poor households paid more in state and local taxes than they did in federal taxes. In more than half the states with income taxes, the point at which a family of four starts paying taxes is more than $5,000 below the poverty line.

The poorest twenty percent of all taxpayers pay a higher share of their income in state and local taxes than do the next 60 percent of the population—the middle class.

Almost all states have some form of sales tax, and that impacts poor families disproportionately, since they have to spend all they earn. The poorest fifth of all families pay three times as high a percentage of their income in sales taxes as do the wealthiest five percent of families.

Taxing the poor is unconscionable. By definition, poor people cannot afford to have their small incomes driven still lower by taxes. The federal tax reform last year recognized that to some extent by removing the working poor from the income tax rolls and by enlarging the earned income tax credit, which rebates money to poor families to compensate for payroll taxes they have to pay.

State and local governments should follow that lead. There should be a major push to remove poor people from their tax rolls. It would be easy to do and not reduce total revenues by enough to matter much.

One way would be to establish an income floor below which no taxes would be collected. That floor should be above the poverty line, which is unrealistically low. And it should include a mechanism for rebating sales taxes, much of the federal earned income credit operates to rebate payroll taxes.

Beyond that, states should seek to replace reliance on regressive sales taxes with broad based, progressive income taxes, thus reducing the total tax burden on moderate-income families.

Jacob is the executive director of the National Urban League.

The following guest editorial is written by Marian Wright Edelman, President of the Children's Defense Fund, a national voice for children.

In many ways, my generation of Black Americans set an important example for our children. We organized, marched and worked behind the scenes to bring about a civil rights revolution in this nation.

Now, it is our young people's turn to make their mark on history. And, in their own way, they are beginning to do so. The Census Bureau informs us that in the 1986 elections, young Black Americans' rate of voting participation had surpassed that of young whites. The voting rate among young people ages 18-24 in our community has surged forward from 10 percentage points behind that of their white peers to three percent ahead.

Our children's example

Our young people are turning out in higher proportions just at a time when most other groups' turnout rates are dropping. Overall voter turnout has been on the decline since 1982, as has overall turnout among the Black community. Our young people are the praiseworthy exception to this sad rule.

Why are a greater proportion of our young people now going to the polls? U.S. Representative John Lewis (D-Ga.) says: "I think there is a feeling among Black young people that they missed the civil rights movement, and the vote is their instrument for social and political change." Reverend Jesse Jackson's campaign has stimulated the interest of many young Black people.

But Black Americans, young and old, still have a long way to go in fully exercising our political clout. Too many of us are not even registered to vote. Of those who are, less than half went to the polls in 1986. And while our young people have recently made great strides forward, they are still turning out at a rate even less than that.

This is a crucial time to get registered and to get our friends, family members, and neighbors registered to vote. Next year our nation will be choosing a new President and many new Senators, Congressmen and Governors. We will be making dozens of other choices that are closer to home, selecting school board members and other local government officials.

You can help make sure that more of us go to the polls next year. Ask young people who know if they are registered and, if not, urge them to do so. Registration is simple and easy now. Contact your city or state Board of Elections for details.

Parke's Lark Fair 'someone you should know'

Someone You Should Know

Lark Fair began her career in the hospitality industry some 15 years ago as a Personnel Director at Scotts Inn (Columbus). She later went to Stouffer's in Arlington, VA and Stouffer's in Cleveland, Ohio before finally settling in Columbus at the Ramada Inn North. While at the Ramada, Lark completed an extensive general manager training program, but later decided that she was best suited for sales. Lark became sales manager for the Parke Hotel Morse Rd., in August, 1987. Congratulations Lark—keep up the determination, and to Jon Self and the Parke Management—You done good!

When J.K. Speaks, Everybody Listens

In 1981, the Sheraton Corporation (Downtown) was seeking an administrative support person for their Director of Sales. Jim King saw the opportunity to start in the hospitality industry on the ground floor and work his way up—which is something he sees lacking in today's youth. King's 4 year stint with the Sheraton was a learning process that paid off. He went from Secretary to Sales Manager, to Asst. Director of Sales. King is now Convention Sales Director for the Greater Columbus Convention and Visitors Bureau.

King advises those who want to be a part of this multi-billion dollar industry that the hospitality industry is very image conscious, therefore looking good, dressing nice and saying the right things can only enhance one's chances of getting in.

"I think the industry is not pursued, because folks don't understand it, but I attest that there is opportunity in this field, and I'd like to see more Blacks take on the challenge." King especially encourages youth to look at Hotel-Motel Management as possible careers.

He suggests that they take summer intern positions as: front desk clerks; bellmen; housekeepers; and other such positions to get their foot in the door. "We, Blacks need to realize that we can't go right into a $25,000 a year position. We must pay our dues, and regardless of how we pay them—the important thing is that we do!

The one last thing I'd like to say to the community is "thank you" for your support over the years, because without all of you—I would not be where I am today."

Baptist Pastors Conference plans 37th annual revival

By REV. A. WILSON WOOD
The Baptist Pastors' Conference Revival committee met recently to begin preparation for the 37th annual simultaneous revival which will be held in many of the Baptist churches of the city beginning March 20, 1988.

The committee, made up of eight pastors, has the responsibility of selecting the theme for the revival, the seminar lecturer, the various speakers for the day meetings, arranging the program for the kick-off, selecting the host church and pastor, and making whatever recommendations necessary for the on-going of Christ's kingdom on earth; therefore, the committee has prayerfully chosen the theme which has been accepted by the conference and around which all of our work

REV. A. WILSON WOOD
...pastor, bethany baptist church will be planned.

"Seeking, Sanctified, and Serving" is the theme selected. The scriptural background is St. John 1:11-12 and St. Matthew 6:33.

Whitten graduates

Airman 1st Class Kenneth R. Whitten Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Whitten of 1219 Som Center Road, Mayfield, Ohio, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

His wife, Nancy, is the daughter of Shirley Spolarich of 17380 Lakeshore, Cleveland.

Best wishes!

Majestic Paint Centers

Every pastor connected with the pastors' conference is expected to participate in the up coming revival. There are souls that need the salvation that Jesus Christ offers, and there are others who are careless about their relationship with the Lord and the image they present. Our desire is to bring in the lost from all over the city that there may be one fold and one shepherd (Jesus Christ) for the church. With every pastor and every church working zealously to extend the kingdom of God on earth, we can assure ourselves and others of a great spiritual awakening in this city, and a better relationship between God and His church.

Although satan uses his power to influence people of all ages, and all positions in life, God's power is all powerful and leaders of the church are obligated to help others seek out the better way which we are convinced is in Christ Jesus our Lord. If God has called us out of darkness into His marvelous light, He has also sanctified us for the work He has given. So this is another opportunity to engage every sanctified soul in service for the Lord. The participant may not know all that is required of him, but God in His time will help to make it plain that there will be no mistake about what to expect.

We are calling upon all churches in this city to join us in prayer as we approach the revival season. We believe prayer to be a vital link between preparation and the actual involvement. Ours is a tremendous task, and like the Apostle Paul, we believe God; that He will use us in ways to make our homes, churches, city, and the world better because He is actively alive in them.

SEASON'S GREETINGS

Wayne T. Lee FUNERAL SERVICE

A POEM - SERENITY

Blue is the color of earth's miracle sky,
With which God protects in Jesus' name.
Blue is that part of every person's life
That turns grey with daily pain and strife.
To achieve serenity is each person's goal.
We can find it in the deep blue of our soul!

Blue is one color in a candle's flame.
That fire of oneness that burns,
Sputters, and will finally die.

Lord,
We ask that the hearts and minds of the living,
Who come in to the deep blue of this quiet place,
May find serene contentment in the knowledge
That their loved ones have reached eternal solace. Amen

One Solitary Life

Here was a man who was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He was a carpenter until he was thirty and then for three years he was an itinerant preacher. He never wrote a book, held an office, went to college or traveled more than two hundred miles from where he was born. He never did one of the things that usually accompany greatness. He had no credentials but himself.

While he was still a young man, popular opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. One of them betrayed him and after a mock trial, he was nailed to a cross between two thieves. When he was dead he was taken down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

Nineteen wide centuries have come and gone and today he is the centerpiece of the human race and the leader of progress.

All the armies that ever marched, and all the navies that ever were built, and all the parliaments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man upon this earth as has that One Solitary Life.

Career workshop slated Jan. 24

A public forum focusing on "Spirituality and Career Issues in Recovery" will be held Sunday, Jan. 24, from 4-7:30 p.m., on the campus of the Methodist Theological School in Ohio. Ministers, seminary students, chemical dependency professionals and recovering persons are especially encouraged to attend. Participants in the workshop will learn about the career renewal by exploring their own careers. The forum will feature a presentation by Dr. Juliet Miller, consultant and counselor in private practice and past Associate Director of the National Center for Research in Vocational Education at The Ohio State University. Miller's major area of interest is career counseling with those who have been affected by chemical depen-ency. She will discuss the ways in which chemical dependency can block expression of the talents and gifts of both chemically dependent and co-dependent persons.

This forum is another in a series presented by the School's Master of Arts in Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Ministry degree program. The series is coordinated by Professor Paul Nicely of the seminary. Future forums will investigate "AA's Fifth Step and Religious Confession: Comparisons and Contrasts" (March 6) and "Ethical Issues in Intervention" (April 21). All forums are held in the John W. Dickhaut Library, ground floor, room L5. Please register in advance for this forum by calling Paul Nicely (614/363-1146) or writing him at the Methodist Theological School in Ohio, 3081 Columbus Pike, Delaware, OH. 43015.

SUPER TALENT HEADLINES TELETHON

Question: What surprise package awaits millions of television viewers across the country the day after Christmas?

Answer: The star-studded "Lou Rawls Parade of Stars" telethon—one of the best entertainment specials to air this holiday season.

The telethon will air coast-to-coast on Saturday, December 26 and will feature some of the entertainment world's hottest stars.

Ben Vereen, Jody Watley, Freddie Jackson, The Whispers, Deniece Williams and many others, will showcase their distinctive talent during the seven-hour holiday spectacular that benefits the United Negro College Fund (UNCF).

The "Lou Rawls Parade of Stars," now in its eighth year, raises money for the UNCF's private, historically Black colleges and universities. Proceeds from the annual event help UNCF schools keep tuition low, as nearly 90 percent of the students attending the schools require financial assistance.

Performers in numerous entertainment categories will appear on the telethon, including Tony and Emmy award-winning actors and actresses, as well as leading jazz, country, gospel and adult contemporary stars.

Rising comedic stars Marsha Warfield of "Night Court" and Sinbad of "Star Search" will take part in the special—the only telethon to benefit higher education—along with venerable greats Nancy Wilson and Sammy Davis, Jr.

Anchoring telethon festivities from Hollywood will be host Lou Rawls, and his co-hosts Marilyn McCoo and Ed McMahon. Noted entertainer Clint Holmes will also serve as co-host, anchoring performances from Las Vegas.

A unique cast of performers comes together for the "Parade of Stars," including Natalie Cole, Michael Franks, Dorian Harewood, the Pointer Sisters, Lynn Redgrave, Smokey Robinson and the cast of "Ain't Misbehavin'."

In all, more than 50 of the entertainment world's noted stars will light the marquee for the fun-filled special. What other holiday concert can give you seven hours of non-stop entertainment?

Al Jarreau, king of improvisational music, will be among the many stars headlining the post-Christmas tele-event. Jarreau, like many of the stars appearing on the show, has performed on the annual event before. Other stars returning to the telethon include Patti LaBelle, Lola Falana and Alan Thicke.

The "Lou Rawls Parade of Stars" is made possible with the support of its national and founding sponsor, Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., which has underwritten the production of the program annually since its inception eight years ago. Through its Budweiser brand, Anheuser-Busch also provides national promotional, advertising and marketing support for the program.

The Kellogg Company, national co-sponsor for the third year, is contributing $1 million. Kellogg will also host five celebrity dinners throughout the country to help raise additional funds for the United Negro College Fund. In addition, the telethon receives enthusiastic support from Kellogg employees who work as volunteers during the program.

American Airlines, which sponsors the "Watch, Win, and Fly" contest during the telethon, is the program's contributing sponsor. Polaroid Corporation and Tylenol are the telethon's contributing co-sponsors.

Diversity will be a key ingredient in this year's telecast. In addition to outstanding musical performances, viewers will be dazzled by illusionists, magician and ventriloquist acts. Spirited selections by gospel greats Shirley Caesar and the Mighty Clouds of Joy will add to the evening's excitement.

Jody Watley, Freddie Jackson and The Whispers, three of the hottest acts in 1987, promise to mesmerize viewers, along with the versatile and agile movements of Toni Basil and the LA Street Rockers.

Christopher F. Edley, president and chief executive officer of the College Fund, said the contributions of the entertainers appearing on the "Parade of Stars" are far reaching. "Not only are they giving millions of television viewers excellent entertainment," Edley said, "they are also helping deserving students attain a college education."

Telethon host Lou Rawls, who personally recruits top talent for the special, said the stars performing on the national telecast provide quality entertainment. "There wouldn't be much to see without their efforts. Viewers can look forward to outstanding performances and a program that will add to the merriment of the holiday season," according to Rawls.

Other stars to appear on the "Lou Rawls Parade of Stars" telethon include George Benson and Earl Klugh, Mickey Gilley, Pia Zadora, Emmanuel Lewis, Melissa Morgan, Anita Baker, Bryant Gumbel, Oprah Winfrey, Alex Trebek and Kashif. Catch the telethon on these Ohio T.V. stations: WUAB-Channel 43 (IND), Cleveland; WCMH-Channel 4 Columbus; WHIO-Channel 7 Dayton; WTVG-Channel 13 Toledo.

Columbusites score big at bridge tournament

The Columbus Bridge Unit of the American Bridge Association (ABA) proved to be a mighty force at a regional tournament held recently in Cleveland, says Virginia Clarke, director of public relations.

Flight "B" was won handily by veteran Columbus players Charles Pyant and Mescal Cosby. In a later match, they placed fourth in the Swiss Team, Clarke explained. A Flight is a bridge term referring to a ranking with "A" being the highest level.

Meanwhile, Hattie Merrill and Maurice Crouch, who teamed with a couple from Dayton, placed second in Flight "C" of the round robin event.

Clarke and Phyllis Heard, ABA tournament and convention manager, put together two above-average sessions to place seventh overall in the open pair, two session event. They later paired with a Detroit team to place third in the Swiss Team — "a whisker away from second place," Clarke said.

In April, Columbus will play host to the 20th Annual Spring Nationals where an estimated 3,500-5,000 bridge players from across the country are expected to attend.

"Anyone interested in local play is invited to join the Buckeye Bridge Club every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Isabelle Ridgeway Nursing Home, 1520 Hawthorne Ave.," Clarke said.

Margeaux's Ode to Christmas... and Stuff

It's the night before Christmas, the year of '87,
Oh, I forgot to get a gift—oh, my Heaven!!
Out to the mall I sped in a hurry.
I'll find SOMETHING nice, so not to worry.

Early tomorrow morn, the kiddies will come down
To see what Nicholas left when he came to town.
There'll be toys for the kids and some grown-up toys, too,
And gloves, scarves and pretty things of almost every hue.

Some will get cameras, videos, and the like,
Many of our friends will get an exercise bike.
They'll need it after going from party to party
Where they ate, drank and danced in a manner so hearty!!

The smart Set had a party that was really top drawer.
They had such a blast that all wanted more.
But, the members of the Set called it to a close
After a fabulous evening, the way all Smart Set things go.

All in their dress-ups was every lassie and lad,
With all the festivities parents and kids were pleased—
And with the spirit of the season they were seized.

The Medical Arts Club danced almost 'til dawn—
And the members stayed until their last guest was gone.
They were all in the spirit of the Christmastime fun
As they smiled to themselves for another thing they had done.

1987 has been a very full year
With many great things AND some not, I fear.
But, our faith and hope has brought us to this day.
So, have a Merry Christmas in a very special way!!!

Now that I have that bit of "creativity" over with (Margeaux, I'm sure that you wouldn't dare call that "pome" creative), let's take a quick little peek at how your friends and mine decided to decorate their home and/or Christmas trees this year.
Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur Blount (Flvie) have a tree perched in the South window of their living room that is decorated with tiny white lights and plaid bows and streamers.
Judge and Mrs. H. Alfred Glasco (Mary) opted to have a huge designer tree with hundreds of porcelain figurines gracefully perched on the tree's limbs.
Decorations that Dr. and Mrs.

Arthur Clark (Thelma) have collected over the years through their travels to places like Mexico, Sweden, etc. will be interspersed with white and blue balls. Joining these beauties will be ornaments that commemorate special things in their life. This year they'll have Pine cones and birds nestle in peach bows that are strategically placed on the roping. Bows, birds, and musical instruments are the highlights on the tree.

A traditional tree with red balls and ornaments including bells and white doves will grace Mr. and

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McGinnis' (Cecelia) tree is decked out in green and white satin bows of varying sizes with white and gold balls. Their many tiny clear lights add just the right touch to this creation. Oh, by the way, congratulations with a capitol Care in order for Cee (ha, ha, I made a pun). This enterprising lady has just completed all of her work at Central Michigan University toward a graduate degree. Cee is now the proud holder of the Master of Science degree in Administration. She was totally taken by surprise the other day when she went to her office in the Ohio Bureau of Medical Operations where she is Chief, to be greeted by a surprise party thrown for her by her staff. Congratulations, Cee, your patience and hard work paid off royally!!!! what a wonderful Christmas present!!!!

By the by, be sure to call my number, 447-8566. December 26th between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. to make a pledge during the UNCF's Telethon. I'm counting on YOU!! HAVE A SAFE, HOLY, AND MERRY HOLIDAY!!!

Women's empowerment seminar plan in '88

Women are taking the future in their own hands by planning the second annual Women's Empowerment Conference from Dec. 11-13 at Franklin University.

Due to the success of and feedback from the first conference, organizers say the 1988 event will be bigger and of interest to more women. They hope to double last year's 350 attendance figure by reaching out to women across the state.

In addition to networking opportunities throughout the weekend, attendees will be treated to talks by "Working Woman"

Editor Kate Rand Lloyd, and by former Olympic swimmer Diana Nyad. Also featured will be Billye Avery, executive director, National Black Women's Health Network, Atlanta.

Workshops will include sessions on leadership skills, career planning, corporate politics, health and wellness, and balancing multiple roles.

The weekend coincides with Women's History Month and International Women's Week. Purpose of the conference is to develop women's abilities to increase personal control and influence positive change in their lives, their communities and their society.

The Empowerment Conference was formed in reaction to needs expressed by the Columbus Women's Roundtable, which is composed of representatives of more than 70 public and private non-profit women's organizations. An ad-hoc advisory committee, composed of volunteers from member roundtable organizations, initiated the conference planning with women from all over Columbus volunteering for the planning process.

Seven low-income families receive Xmas food baskets

Seven low-income families in Columbus will have plenty of food on their tables for the holiday season.

CMACAO held its ninth annual Christmas Food Shopping Spree Dec. 16 in Carl Brown's IGA Foodline, 1315 Mt. Vernon Ave.

The shopping spree, which was sponsored by Carl Brown, WCKX Enterprises and The Columbus Call and Post, featured local media personalities racing down the aisles of Carl Brown's grocery store and grabbing groceries.

CMACAO organized the Christmas food run, and determined the eligibility of the seven low-income families who were to be the recipients of the runners' food selections. Families were selected after applying for holiday food assistance through CMACAO's Neighborhood Service System, Head Start, and Senior Opportunities and Services Program.

Competing in the food run were: Steve Minnick, WSYX Channel 6; Pat Warren, anchorwoman, WBNS TV 10; Jack Harris, president, WCKX Enterprises; Dave Christopher, investigative reporter, WCMH TV 4; Wanda Stephen, director of communications, CMACAO; Starita Smith, bureau chief, The Columbus Dispatch Neighborhood News; and Ted Oshodi, city editor, The Columbus Call and Post.

Oshodi, runner for the family of Karen Guishard, won first place in the food sprint, collecting $233.62 worth of groceries in two minutes.

"We didn't have any kind of strategy like other people did, I just told Ted to grab everything," Guishard said.

Sandra Wells, a neighbor of Guishard's who was present to cheer her team on said, "We'd like to say Merry Christmas to Ted Oshodi and The Call and Post, and Carl Brown because this is going to be a Merry Christmas for us."

Wanda Stephen, CMACAO director of communications, said this year's run was better than last year's event.

"This year's race was like a media fun-run. There was a lot of enthusiasm among the participating families and there was a feeling of intense competition among the runners," Stephen said.

Participants in the run grabbed $1036.56 worth of groceries for the seven families.

Electric rates go down again

Customers of Columbus Southern Power Company will pay lower electric rates beginning January 1. The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio approved a $6.6-million rate decrease on December 17.

It marks the second general rate decrease during the last 10 months, totaling $14-million annually.

This means that in 1988 customers will pay less for electricity than they did in 1987, 1986, 1985 and even in 1984.

The Central and Southern Ohio areas served by Columbus Southern enjoy electric rates that are either the lowest or among the very lowest in the state.

Electricity - always a great value - will be an even greater value in 1988.

Happy Holidays and thank you for being our customer.

Bill Cosby in holiday movie

Bill Cosby stars as Leonard, a retired master secret turned-restaurantier who finds himself in the midst of a perilous madcap on-adventure to save the world from lobsters, frogs, snakes and other denizens of the animal kingdom in Columbia Pictures' "Leonard Part 6."

Having the world is just one of Leonard's problems; his domestic life is a shambles. He is hopelessly in love with his estranged wife, and he's been obsessively trying to win her back for the last seven years, and his 20 year old daughter is in love with a 66 year old man. Domestic frustration leads Leonard to accept the government's "persuasive offer" to crack the case.

The objective for Leonard is to start the diabolical plans of a mad scientist to take over the world by manipulation of an assortment of some very strange animals with a sphere containing a special liquid that controls them. With the hope of winning his wife to win her back, Parker takes on this mad mission with unconventional means, a sense of humor and has a wonderful time with dangerous

BLACK NATIVITY
For those who missed it, CST's 1987 Black Nativity, "Joseph's Story," will be telecast on ACTV Channel 21 on Thursday, December 24th from 1-3 p.m., and on Christmas Day from 5-7 p.m.

The 2 1/4 hour show has been edited, however, to a 2 hour tape. "The Angel's Visit," Mary's first song (the second song in Act I) is original, with lyrics by Deborah Childs Macklin and music by G. Steve Taylor. I recommend the program as excellent family viewing, and on behalf of CST, we hope you enjoy it. It's our Christmas gift to Central Ohio.

THE HYATT REGENCY COLUMBUS

Dizzy Gillespie, Danny and the Juniors and the Coasters and Two Suited (a magician), two comedians and Music King will ring in the New Year at the Hyatt Regency on New Year's Eve. The party begins at 6 p.m. and the fun continues until 1:30 p.m. A limited number of guest rooms are available for folk reserving tickets. For further information, call 436-1234.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Donnetta, Gail, Teresa, Terry, Vicki and myself (The Entertainment Staff) offer this poem and extend best wishes for a joyous holiday season and a happy and prosperous new year to the many people who we have the pleasure of serving.

Merry Christmas to you, the young and the gay;

Merry Christmas to you, the ones we hold dear;
God bless you and keep you and stay very near!

Merry Christmas to you, everyone everywhere;
Peace on earth and good will-this be our prayer!

Reggie Crews returns to 'Miracle 6'

People who sell air time on radio and TV stations are now account executives. A well-known account executive, Reggie Crews returned to the area's leading urban soul station, WCKX, 6.30 FM, last week.

Crews, a Columbus native, sold for cable and commercial time and did a two-year sales with WCKX when it first had the urban soul market. He is a bachelor of science degree from Ohio State University and attended graduate school at Ohio State. He has studied marketing in Providence, Rhode Island. Crews was an honor student at Ohio State, was cited for community service by the Ohio State and the House, and received an award as one of the outstanding Young Men of Ohio.

Crews joins the station at a time when, according to a December survey of Black Radio Exclusive magazine, WCKX is winning the urban soul battle in the Columbus market. In the October Arbitron ratings, WCKX led its three competitors by nearly a point with 2.7 overall market share: the 24-hour AM, WVKO achieved a 1.9; WZZT, a 24-hour FM, reached 1.8; and the 24-hour jazz format station, WBBY-FM, reached 1.8.

Station owner, Jack Harris said, "Reggie Crews has the skills we want in an account executive and we're glad to have him back."

Harris bought the London-based station in 1984 and became the only Black radio station owner in Central Ohio history. He began airing the urban soul format in October of that year. The station's coverage area in addition to Central Ohio includes east to Buckeye Lake, west to the Dayton-Springfield area, north to the Delaware area, and south to Chillicothe.

Crews told the CALL AND POST, "Columbus is the 20th largest radio market area in the country, with a metropolitan population of 1,400,000. And, WCKX is leading and steadily on the rise."

The diamond is the hardest of all gemstones.

NBC-TV to air NAACP Image awards

Stars of three NBC programs—"The Cosby Show," "227" and "Unnatural Causes"—plus Entertainer of the Year Lionel Richie are among the outstanding Black entertainers to be honored as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) celebrates the 20th Annual NAACP Image Awards in a special telecast on NBC Saturday, Jan. 16 (11:30 p.m.-1 a.m. NYT).

The broadcast will mark the award ceremony's second network-TV presentation. In 1986, NBC's telecast of the special earned an 8 rating and a 23 share, according to the Nielsen Television Index.

Sherman Hemsley (NBC's "The Cosby Show"), Phylicia (NBC's "The Cosby Show"), Malcolm-Jamal Warner ("The Cosby Show") and "The Cosby Show" were among the people and programs honored with awards during the Dec. 13 ceremony (see NBC Daily News Report of 12/14/87).

Richie will receive this year's award as Entertainer of the Year. Stars appearing on the telecast include Anita Baker, The Pointers Sisters, Natalie Cole, Tyne Daly, Lou Gossett Jr., George C. Scott, Warner, Marla Gibbs ("227"), Quincy Jones and Oprah Winfrey. According to producer Hamilton Cloud, the 1987 NAACP Image Awards is a "celebration of positive Black images in the media." The winners were selected by members of the NAACP.

In addition to the presentation of the awards, the program will feature performances by Al Jarreau, Jeffrey Osborne, Nancy Wilson and Gil Scott-Heron, plus a special salute to notable Black actresses of the past 20 years.

"The 20th Annual NAACP Image Awards" is a presentation of Imaginative Entertainment and the NAACP, in association with MAT Productions and Carson Productions. Willis Edwards and Maynell Thomas are the executive producers. Hamilton Cloud is the producer; Tony Singletary, the director.

Big 10 conference establishes minority fellowships for athletic administration

SCHAUMBURG, ILL. — The Big Ten joint group — conference directors of athletics and faculty representatives — in an effort to provide minorities and women opportunities to access entry level positions in intercollegiate athletics administration, approved the establishment of two conference office fellowships at recently-completed meetings in Chicago.

The fellowships will be named in honor of Charles D. Henry, the Big Ten's first Black assistant commissioner who died in 1982.

Conference office staff members are in the process of preparing fellowship job descriptions so a nationwide search for qualified candidates can begin immediately.

...remembered by big 10

Individuals selected to the pilot fellowship program will receive broad-based work experience in all facets of the Big Ten's Schaumburg, Ill. offices, and assist staff members in the day-to-day administration of such areas as conference rules, eligibility, championships, public relations, meetings, promotions, and officiating.

"The Big Ten office is indeed proud to provide these two fellowship opportunities for Blacks, women and other minorities," conference commissioner Wayne Duke said. "Big Ten universities have long been at the forefront of intercollegiate athletics administration. Conference presidents and chancellors, faculty representatives and directors of athletics remain sensitive to concerns and issues of equal opportunity."

The two fellowships evolved from a recommendation of the Advisory Commission, a standing committee of the Big Ten that consists of one Black graduate from each Conference university who lettered in intercollegiate athletics and is now prominent in business and professional life.

"We're confident that the Big Ten office will attract the very best candidates," Duke continued.

"This is a most worthwhile program whose time has come."

High school gridiron injuries enter new realm of treatment

The treatment and rehabilitation of injuries received by high school football players no longer has to be a season-ending experience due to the advances being made at the SportsMedicine Grant Clinic at 340 East Town Street.

SportsMedicine Grant was initiated at Grant Hospital in May 1985. The program is the offspring of a pilot program started in Boston. Today, there are now eight such sportsmedicine programs across the country.

Dr. Raymond Tesner, director of the program, said Grant Hospital had long been interested in starting a sports-injury program, and because it involved not only the treatment of patients, but attracting personnel, advertising and marketing, sought the assistance of the Boston program to launch its goals.

Tesner is pleased with the feedback that has been received from the community and said from the volume of patients involved in the program there seemed to be a need for such a program.

Tesner said that while any doctor can treat a sports injury his clinic goes beyond initial treatment to include communication among coaches, players and parents. "That's really been the secret to our success," he said.

For the second consecutive year the "Fifth Quarter" injury clinic is being offered at no charge to Columbus City League football players. The clinic is open each Friday night throughout the season from 10 p.m. to midnight and Saturday mornings from 9 a.m. until noon.

He said the emphasis of the program is to establish communication among coaches, players and parents so that each is informed of the athlete's injury, prognosis and future playing ability. "That's really been the secret to our success," Tesner said.

Although sports medicine has been practiced for years, the program at SportsMedicine Grant differs not in treatment, but with the team of doctors available which include orthopedic doctors, therapists, trainers and casters for example, to treat patients immediately.

Tesner said the players that have received treatment at the clinic have come in with such significant injuries as fractured ankles and dislocated hips, and encourages more players and parents to take advantage of the program.

While football players account for the majority of patients treated many other athletes are treated throughout each sports season.

Tesner said treatment of sports injuries has changed significantly due to orthoscopic surgery. Beforehand when athletes complained of tender, painful knees and shoulders, doctors were only able to predict the injury. With the orthoscope doctors can literally view the internal structure of the injury and prescribe a more specific treatment.

Blacks influenced more by sports than whites

OXFORD, O. — Since Jackie Robinson's debut as a professional baseball player, minorities have viewed sports as a way to escape poverty, said Miami University Professor William J. Rudman.

Reports that Blacks are influenced by sports more than whites are true, according to Rudman, but he attributes the difference to socio-economic variables and not race.

"The disproportionate number of Blacks in the lower income/poverty level as well as the high number of successful Blacks in professional sports causes the greater differences between the responses of Blacks and whites about sport attitudes," said Rudman, an assistant professor of physical education, health and sport studies.

Due to the high visibility and large salaries of U.S. sports figures, both whites and Blacks in low income or poor families see sports as a way of improving social prestige and economic mobility, he said, adding that "the avenues for upward mobility for poor Blacks are much narrower than for poor whites."

One theory in Rudman's study suggests that because Blacks face discriminatory practices in the workplace, "the glamour of professional sport becomes increasingly appealing, encouraging talented Blacks to direct their energies toward developing athletic prowess."

Blacks more than whites identify with sports to cope with limited social and economic opportunities denied them because of discrimination, Rudman said. Blacks also credit sports with teaching children social values and norms, reflecting community pride and reducing juvenile delinquency, he added.

For his study, Rudman used data from a national survey conducted by the Miller Lite Brewing Co. to measure how a person feels when a favorite team or athlete wins or loses, how sport enters into lifestyle behavior and how it can be used to deal with social problems.

"Blacks feel they can control their destiny on the court or playing field because sport is based on egalitarian concept -- performance is the only thing that matters," Rudman said.

Columbus NAACP tells area Blacks to 'walk out' of biased stores

By GILBERT PRICE
Call and Post Staff Writer

"If you don't hear about it through Black media, don't buy it. If you walk into a store and see few or no minorities, walk out."

That was the simple message of a proposed boycott which the Columbus NAACP was promoting from Dec. 21 to January 1, according to Melanie Mitchell, president of the Columbus branch. The goal was to "achieve social and economic parity for Blacks and other minorities" through a plan of selective shopping, according to a release developed by the NAACP.

"Minorities represent 30 percent or more of Columbus population, yet minority concerns receive low priority when it comes to social and economic issues," the release announcing the boycott said.

Melanie Mitchell said the NAACP was promoting "a general boycott," rather than an attack on the hiring practices of specific companies. Although the NAACP had some specific companies about which they have received complaints in the Columbus area, Mitchell said they were not prepared to address those companies specifically at this time. "At some point, you go from general to specific," Mitchell said, but not yet. "We're leaving it up to the community" to identify companies which discriminate against Blacks. "The community needs to be able to identify who the problems are, instead of somebody having to tell them," Mitchell added. "All we're trying to do is make the community more aware, and put employers on notice."

A similar effort is developing in Cleveland right now, as a coalition in that city has identified a number of specific employers, and is preparing to take some action against those employers. Mitchell said that, while no specific targets have been identified as yet, "I can see that, eventually, there will be some specific targets."

Blacks are becoming less and less visible in the Columbus job market, Mitchell complained. Noting that The CALL & POST had done an article two years before regarding the lack of Blacks in high-level, "behind the scenes" positions, Mitchell said, "they're not only not behind the scenes, (Blacks) are not out front. Blacks are less and less visible even in the lower-paying jobs."

Ralph Smithers, a vice-president with the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce, said the Chamber did not have specific programs to address affirmative action issues among its estimated 5000 member businesses. However, the Chamber has made the Columbus Area Minority Supplier Development Council, a group which seeks to increase corporate spending with minority businesses, a chamber affiliate. The Chamber has also created a Minority Business Development Committee to help provide minority entrepreneurs with technical assistance and training.

"All of us see the importance of building minority business," Smithers said.

Melanie Mitchell said the major purpose of the boycott at this stage is to let Blacks and whites alike know that "(the Black community) has a lot of resources," which can be used to promote those entities which believe in racial equality and punish those which do not. Mitchell has one simple phrase for the community: "Don't patronize discrimination."

CHRISTMAS CAROLERS—The Huntington National Bank will officially "adopt" West Broad Street Elementary School in January. The Huntington adopted the school as part of the Columbus Public Schools Adopt-A-School program. Pictured here are students from West Broad Street Elementary who went Christmas caroling Dec. 17 in the Huntington Center.

Huntington Bank adopts West Side grade school

In January, The Huntington National Bank will officially "adopt" West Broad Street Elementary School as part of the Adopt-A-School program. To celebrate that partnership, students from West Broad Street Elementary School filled the halls of the Huntington Center with the spirit of Christmas, Dec. 17 as they went carolling from floor to floor, singing songs of the season.

The Adopt-A-School program is a joint venture of the Columbus Public Schools system and the Columbus Chamber of Commerce in which schools form partnerships with local businesses to increase the community's involvement with local schools. More than 175 partnerships have been formed in the five years since the program began.

"The Adopt-A-School program provides us with an excellent opportunity to reach out to the children in our community and let them know we care," said Frank Wobst, chairman and chief executive officer of Huntington Bancshares Incorporated. "It is a very personal approach to community involvement, a program which has generated enthusiasm among Huntington employees."

West Broad Street Elementary School is the largest elementary school in the Columbus Public Schools system, with 710 students from the East and West sides of Columbus.

The Huntington kicked off its Adopt-A-School program by putting up a holiday mitten tree at the Huntington Center. Huntington employees and staff have decorated the tree with mittens, scarves and gloves which will be given to students at West Broad Street Elementary. Additionally, The Huntington hosted a reception for teachers and school staff, and a tour of The Huntington's art collection.

The Huntington has also awarded ten student memberships to COSI, to students who have received outstanding citizenship awards. Additional plans for the program call for Huntington employees to tutor students in a variety of subjects, and to participate in the school's "Right to read" program.

Another opening expected to be filled with a Black is that of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, where the governor is expected to name Leonard Lancaster to a vacancy caused by the retirement of William Brooks. Lancaster is one of four names which has been recommended to the governor by a nominating committee.

Other administration vacancies which are expected to be filled shortly are those of Transportation (where current director Warren Smith is expected to replace Lancaster as chairman of the Industrial Commission; and Commerce, and Administrative Services, where either assistant director Karen Nowak or Department of Liquor Control chief Bill Flaherty will be named to replace the departing William G. Sykes.

Graham orders cops

The new EEO official would be hired by a committee comprised of representatives of the public safety director's office, the mayor's office and a public representative.

While Sandy Spater, attorney for the Black police officers, was disappointed that the Black officers had not been included in the group which would choose the new EEO officers, he expressed support with other aspects of the order.

"It's a good order," Spater said. "I think the EEO officer needs to be an independent and aggressive person, and I think (the order) provides for that."

Spater said that, because the new EEO officer would be "independent of the chain of command" within the police department, he would have the freedom to cite anyone in the police division, "even the chief of police if he had to," for discrimination if such a finding was appropriate.

"A lot of it depends on the kind of person who is selected," Spater added.

Safety Director Montgomery had little comment on the order itself, noting "it's been in the works for a long time. The general line of having someone more neutral than the usual agency EEO officers was expected." However, he added that he believed that the racial climate in the division of police had changed in the more than two years since then Judge Robert Duncan found a pattern of harassment and discrimination against Black officers in the division of police.

There seemed to have been a reduction in "some of the more outrageous things that were alleged to have occurred," Montgomery said, noting that he had heard almost nothing about "overt racist remarks" in the past two years, although there were continuing complaints regarding transfers and reassignments.

However, Spater said that, in the past two years, he has seen a number of complaints from officers. "A number of people have gone to the Ohio Civil Rights Commission, and there have been a number of probable cause findings," against the division of police, Spater said.

Montgomery said that morale in the division of police had suffered because of the suit and its aftermath.

"I suspect that, as a direct result of the Police Officers for Equal Rights suit, some feelings have been exacerbated between the races" because of the resentment of what some white officers might perceive as special treatment for Black officers, Montgomery said.

However, Montgomery was optimistic that, "in the long haul, those feelings will be ameliorated" as Black and white officers work together in a more integrated system.

And, much of the responsibility for making that process work will fall in the hands of the new EEO officer in the division.

Kappas 'adopt' Johnson Park '20'

"This program is unique because this is the first attempt of a fraternity to adopt a junior high school. The fraternity will actually follow the boys for five years, until the boys are prepared to enter college," Ilg said.

"The key to this program is that it is a long-range plan. These men are going to take the next five years out of their lives to make sure these kids are successful. I think the program will be a success," Ilg explained.

An eighth grade teacher team chose the 20 students that Kappa Alpha Psi will be working with. Howard said the team chose young men who were capable of achieving, but are not performing as well as they could.

Tom Brown, principal of the NEW Johnson Park Middle School said, "They are potentially strong leaders. They're from so many different backgrounds and are some of the finest students at Johnson Park."

Jeff Stanley, one of the 20 students said, "I am proud to be picked for (the program). It'll give us something to be proud of."

"I was already planning to go to college," said Buddy Hatcher, another one of the students, "I think this program will help me get ready."

Another student, Greg Harrington said, "This is going to give us a good start in life and education. They should know about this stuff because they've experienced it. My grandmother said it is a good program because I am going to need an education."

At each kickoff gala, Rawls encourages local UNCF volunteers to canvass their city for contributions. He also responds to fans by signing autographs and posing for pictures with them.

Many of the top stars who appear on the "Parade of Stars" are personally recruited by Rawls. His sincere interest in helping youngsters obtain a college education has convinced many celebrities to return on the telethon year after year.

Notes Rawls: "If students are willing to put in the time and effort to earn a degree, then society should do its best to provide the opportunities for them to excel. This is what the telethon is all about."

"These people gladly volunteer their time because they understand what's at stake," said Rawls. "They provide great entertainment on the show and then encourage viewers to contribute because they know that education is the key that unlocks the door to progress for our country."

Superstar entertainer Sammy Davis, Jr., will be honored for his outstanding support of the United Negro College Fund (UNCF) during the 1987 "Lou Rawls Parade of Stars."

Davis has appeared on the telethon numerous times, encouraging viewers to donate money to the College Fund to help deserving students obtain a college education.

The UNCF has been one of the major charitable causes that Davis has consistently supported. In 1976 he served as chairman of the organization's Special Events Division, which is responsible for staging a number of fund-raising events.

His return appearances on the annual "Lou Rawls Parade of Stars" telethon have become a favored tradition. Whether he's singing songs, telling favorite stories or making sincere pleas for donations, Davis' contributions to the telethon are always memorable.

Although education and social science are popular areas of study with UNCF students, 31 percent graduate with business degrees. At some UNCF institutions, more than 10 percent of each year's graduating class is accepted for advanced education by medical, dental and veterinary medicine schools.

The students at United Negro College Fund schools can be expected to be the leaders and responsible citizens of the 21st century.

Col's Spelman alumnae announce grant in honor of Beadie Lynch

By CATHERINE WILLIS
Call and Post Contributing Writer

The Columbus Alumnae Chapter of Spelman College recently announced the development of a scholarship award in memory of Beadie Lynch, a Spelman alumna and mother of The Call & Post general manager Amos H. Lynch Sr.

The Beadie Lynch Scholarship Award will be given to a first-year graduate student at Ohio State University who received her baccalaureate degree from Spelman College.

Mrs. Lynch had been an active member of the Columbus Alumnae Chapter. When word reached her that the first Black female president of Spelman College, Dr. Johnetta Cole, was scheduled to be a guest lecturer for the Women's Studies Department at Ohio State University, she was interested, and eagerly awaited the affair.

Two days before Dr. Cole's arrival in Columbus, an effort was made to arrange a visit for Dr. Cole at the Lynch home, but Mrs. Lynch was too ill to receive visitors.

During her visit to Columbus, Dr. Cole met with a number of Spelman alumnae at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Watson Walker. Walker, a dentist and former member and president of the Columbus Board of Education, has deep roots at Spelman because his mother, two sisters, and niece are alumnae of the school.

Ironically, Dr. Cole wrote a special note to Beadie Lynch while at the affair, commending her for her love and loyalty to Spelman. As Dr. Cole wrote that note neither she nor the other alumnae knew that Mrs. Lynch had just passed away.

The note reads:

"Dear Beadie Lynch,

It makes me very happy to send you warm greetings and love from your Spelman Family.

Your kinfolk on the campus are grateful for all that you do to help Spelman — your school — continue to educate Black women who achieve.

Respectfully,
Johnetta Cole

President of Spelman College
It is in that spirit that the Columbus chapter has inaugurated the Beadie Lynch Scholarship Award. Contribution checks can be made payable to: Beadie Lynch Scholarship Award, c/o 191 Melyers Ct., Worthington, Oh. 43085.

retired from the bench in Michigan.

Letts said he had talked to his father after the appointment, and "he's on cloud nine as well. He called some of his former colleagues who are still on the bench and said, 'my son's going to be a judge'."

Letts is replacing James Britt, who died earlier this year. His term will expire Jan. 2, 1989, and he must come up for election next November. However, he believes that the success shown by Franklin County Municipal Court Judge Janet Jackson in winning, with 55 percent of the vote, her race against a tough Republican challenger bodes well for his own candidacy.

"It makes me feel real good in terms of the support this community gave Janet," Letts said. "She set the pace, and I have to continue it."

Also appointed by Celeste to a vacancy was Albert Bell, general counsel of the Ohio State Bar Association. Bell was named to replace George Smith, who resigned Dec. 1 for an appointment to the federal bench.

HONORED—Ed Young, who turned 83 Dec. 15, was honored with a special proclamation from the Ohio House of Representatives for his 25 years of service at the Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center State Representative I. Ray Miller from the 29th District, presented the proclamation to Young.

Lancaster in at PUCO; Flaherty named at DAS

COLUMBUS-- In a long-awaited move, Gov. Richard F. Celeste announced the shifting of Industrial Commission Chairman Leonard Lancaster to a seat on the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio and his replacement with Department of Transportation director Warren Smith.

In other decisions, Celeste also promoted ODOT assistant director Bernard Hurst to director, replacing Smith; promoted superintendent of Banks Linda Page to director of the Department of Commerce, replacing Kenneth Cox; and named close personal and political associate William Flaherty as director of the Department of Administrative Services, replacing William Sykes.

The shift of Lancaster had been predicted for some time. Lancaster had been a member of the Industrial Commission since 1976, rising to its chairmanship in 1983. However, he had expressed an interest in leaving the cabinet-level post. The opportunity came when former PUCO member William Brooks, like Lancaster a Black attorney, retired from his seat on Dec. 1.

Despite the apparent interest in the Celeste administration's part in promoting the Lancaster shift and the move of Smith to the Industrial Commission, the process could not be formally accomplished until a nominating committee, as required by law, had reviewed the potential candidates for the PUCO seat, and recommended four nominees to the governor.

LEONARD LANCASTER
...replaces Bill Brooks

Flaherty's appointment as director of Administrative Services was also of little surprise to many in the Celeste Administration. Flaherty, who had served as director of the Department of Liquor control since early 1986, has worked closely with Gov. Celeste for more than 15 years, including a stint as his top assistant in both the Lieutenant Governor's office and the Peace Corps, which Celeste directed from 1979 to 1981.

"Starting with his work on the State Operations Improvement Task Force back in 1983, Bill has shown a strong commitment to saving of Administrative Services," Celeste said in a press statement accompanying his announcement.

In the flurry of appointments, one was not announced: the naming of the new director of the Department of Liquor control to replace Flaherty. There has been some speculation that current Department of Administrative Services assistant director Karen Nowak, who was a finalist for the DAS director's post, may be named at Liquor Control.

Woman, 56, struck, by two cars killed

A Columbus woman died Dec. 11 in Grant Hospital after she was hit by two cars on E. Livingston Ave., police said.

Mrs. Rita R. Johnson, 56, was struck at E. Livingston and Oakwood Aves. Then she was struck by a second car, pinned underneath and dragged a block to E. Livingston and S. Champion Aves., police said.

Police said Rosalyn Lusear, 29, of 1638 Hanford St. was the driver of the first car, and Nathaniel Calloway Jr., 27, of 1495 Franklin Ave. was the driver of the second car that struck Johnson.

Franklin County Deputy Coroner Dr. Carl Tetrick, said an autopsy will depend on a toxicology report, which is expected next week.

No charges had been filed as of Dec. 15. A police investigation is being conducted.

Services for Mrs. Johnson will be held at 8 p.m. Dec. 17 in the chapel of Wayne T. Lee Funeral Home, 1370 E. Main St. A wake will precede at 7 p.m. Bishop Calvin Frazier, pastor of Wayside Mission, in Columbus, will officiate.

She is survived by father, Clarence Johnson; son, James Smith; two daughters, Sheila and Denise Smith; brother, Jerry Walker and seven sisters, Melinda (Vernon) Robinson, Geraldine (William) Scott, Leola (Allen) Johnson, Margaret (Wallace) Tanksley, Valena Smith, LaVonne (Cecil) Cox, and Clarice (Ali) Vaso.

Trout named to panel for injured workers

COLUMBUS—The state panel, which regulates awards to injured workers has gotten another Black member, as Gov. Richard Celeste has appointed Columbus area resident Paula Trout to a vacant post on the Industrial Commission.

Trout will serve until June 30, 1991. She replaces Robert McAllister, a Marysville Republican,

PAULA TROUT
...second black female on commission who resigned his seat on the commission as a public member and was reappointed as an employers' representative.

Trout will serve on the five-member panel, at least momentarily, with another Black, chairman Leonard Lancaster. However, Lancaster is expected soon to be appointed to membership on the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio.

Trout has a bachelor's degree in psychology and a law degree from Capital University, and master's degrees in public administration and business administration from Central Michigan University.

She was a deputy administrator in the Bureau of Workers' Compensation, the sister agency of the Industrial Commission.

She is the second Black woman to ever serve on the Industrial Commission. Gov. John Gilligan appointed Marguerite Neal to the commission in the early 1970s. She resigned in 1976 to take a post as deputy director in the Department of Industrial Relations during the Rhodes administration.

It has been speculated for some time that Lancaster would move to the PUCO; however, no formal announcement has been made. A nominating committee for the PUCO post vacated by attorney William Brooks has named Lan-

SEASON'S GREETINGS

Webster defines a "season" as a period of the year associated with particular activities. The seasons of Christmas, Kwanzaa, and Hannukah are all characterized by BELONGING - being in close relationship; by CELEBRATING - demonstrating satisfaction by festivities; by PEACEMAKING - reconciling parties at variance; by CISCENING - hearing with thoughtful attention; by CARING - feeling interest or concern; by THANSGIVING - acknowledging divine goodness; by SHARING - partaking of, experiencing, using, enjoying with others; and by GOING FORTH TO MAKE A BETTER WORLD - being a goodwill ambassador.

During these special seasons, we pause to express our appreciation for your friendship and loyalty. We are grateful for your confidence in us and thank you for the pleasant association we have enjoyed during the past year.

Let us commemorate these seasons by living what "it's about" throughout the coming year and may every happiness then be yours.
